Global challenges.

Today we are going to talk about global challenges. Global challenges are negative. We call them “global” because they affect the whole world. Some examples of global issues are war, global warming, starvation and lack of education. Often if there is a war, many people become refugees. Global warming is melting the polar-ice, some animals like the polar bear might become extinct. Starvation is a big problem, and many people have to go to bed hungry everyday, because they do not have something to eat. In some countries girls do not get to go to school. Children without an education usually end up poor . Many of the global challenges are unfair and we need to work together to fix them.
